

ANNUAL FINANCIAL AID ESTIMATED AND EDUCATION COSTS

Maximum Annual Financial Aid Offering:

Federal Stafford Loan (Un Sub)	20,500
Grad Plus Federal Loan	12,000

Total Annual Financial Aid $32,500

This estimate assumes that the student has an Expected Family Contribution (EFC) of 0 and qualifies for any aid, however it will vary depending on their academic load. Remember this is the maximum annual offering, you could decide to take a lesser amount.

Juris Doctor (JD) Annual Education Cost:

Day Program tuition (30 credits x $ 485)	$14,550
Annual Fee	945
Annual BARBRI Fee	1,190

Total Day Program Annual Cost $16,685

The annual fees do not include medical plan. The Institution reserves the right to make changes to these items at any time. That is, both the cost credit and the fees listed here may vary and they do not constitute an offer or commitment that the Law School needs to keep.

Federal Work Study Program

- The student participation will depend on the funds' availability. The participant will be located in an office or with professors

- They must submit their payrolls to the Financial Aid Office every two weeks on the scheduled dates as determined by the calendar
- Students interested in participating in the program must visit the Placement and Employment Office on the first day of classes in August.

Institutional Honor Scholarship

The School of Law confers merit scholarships with institutional funds to students with high academic achievement, considering the grade point average, the academic load, the available funds and the number of applicants that are eligible each semester.

The funds of the Honor Scholarship are directed to cover the general educational costs of the student. The evaluation, determination, distribution and disbursement of the scholarship will be carried out once the date of changes, enroll and withdrawals, stipulated in the Administrative Academic Calendar of each semester, has ended. If the student has no debts with the UIPR, the Bursar's Office will generate a full refund.

External scholarships

Other alternatives from which graduate students can benefit include, external scholarships, which come from public and private entities. These scholarships are completely separate from the institution, which are exclusively managed by the student. The Interamerican University of Puerto Rico Law School, isn't responsible for the results of student's scholarship management.

Bar Study Loan

The purpose of this loan is to cover the costs of the preparatory period during the study for the bar exam. After the graduation fee is paid, you can apply, but no later than 12 months after it. This loan is certified by the Registrar Office.
